Pandora's Trunk, Local Fashion Design Collective, presents Cabaret Deconstructiv
Climate Theater, 285 9th St, San Francisco, April 18th 1-5pm
Storytime Fashion Runway Showcase 2:30 & 4pm

(San Francisco, CA, 04.02.09) Pandora's Trunk represents a group of local artists who are building their own economy and rewriting the rules on all levels. In the wake of massive global economic change, these independent designers are banding together in a sustainable microbusiness showcase, ushering in this new era the way only San Francisco knows how, with bleeding-edge innovation. And clowns.

Pandora's Storytime Fashion Runway Showcase breaks ground in the fashion world by using each set of designs as thematic elements in a narrative story. Princesses and country lads share the stage with drag performers and bellydancers in a mind-blowing mash-up. Audience members will be able to check out this fully produced stage show and then meet and greet with the clothing and costume geniuses behind it all. Attendees can buy the fashions that they see onstage off the rack, fresh from each designer's hot little hands.

Pandora's Trunk began as an underground warehouse fashion sale in March of 2006. This group has always stood for indie arts from bay area guerilla designers of all stripes. In May the entire show will pick up and head to San Mateo for Maker Faire, where it will be presented on the mainstage! San Francisco is making a name for itself internationally as a home for eco-friendly fashion, and the designers of Pandora's Trunk are pleased to show work that is good for all bodies, celestial, planetary, and human.
